ABSTRACT

Title: Community Participation in Sustainable Development at Gandul Village, Pilangkenceng Subdistrict, Madiun District (Case Study Program Bhakti Sosial Terpadu)

Writer: Feni Ria Astuti

Advisor: Dr. Biyanto, M.Ag

Keyword: Community Participation, Sustainable Development, Bhakti Sosial Terpadu.

Community participation is key to success of development. In sustainable development, public participation occurs early in the development planning until the construction work. The duty of the government to increase community participation for development to achieve a successful. Sustainable development carried out with the purpose of increasing the welfare of society. The targets of sustainable development carried out by the local government according to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) include health, gender equality, water supply, infrastructure development, reduction in inequality, and the transparency in government budgets. To reach this aim, local governments and village governments and communities work together to develop the natural potential and the potential of the community. In this thesis, aim to reveal community participation in sustainable development through a program of Bhakti Sosial Terpadu (BST).

The research method used descriptive approach in the form of descriptions of words instead of numbers. Data collection techniques include using observation of exploration related problems studied and conducted interviews so as to strengthen the data are sketchy. Informant selecting in this study with purposive sampling based on the consideration of informants are considered the most knows and master of the required data researchers. Data were analyzed using data reduction is choosing and summarizing data to be more focused, data presentation is connects between categories of the variables that simplify writing and verification are drawing conclusions from the early stages of the data obtained up to the saturation values.

The results of this study show that the enthusiasm of people in a very participatory sustainable development. Seen at the beginning of public participation in the development planning program BST to implementing the program BST. BST programs into sustainable development programs because it includes objectives in accordance with the SDGs. In realizing the sustainable development, local governments, village governments and communities are able to work in synergy. So that the BST program implementing by the district government success in achieving development objectives. Additionally, through a program of BST can also increase community participation in sustainable development, and to form an independent society according to the vision and mission of the regents.