CHAPTER II
REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

This review of the related literature is intended to provide a conceptual framework and description about teaching English based on local cultural values and learning activity in melting pot paradigm. The principal aspects covered on this chapter are teaching English based on local cultural values, melting pot paradigm, and learning activities, and also previous study.

A. Review of Related Literature

1. Teaching English-based on Local Cultural Values

Mastering English, as international language, was necessary for every global people; on the other hand, the investment of cultural values in this globalization era has become human attention. Underlined, the attitude which showed when someone having interaction with other people reflect their nation character. Thus, the challenge of global human is maintaining the nationalism; on the other hand the investment of cultural values could be doing in the process of learning.

Mentioned in the language learning principle which was showed by Brown H. Douglas that Successful mastery of the second language will be due to a large extent to a learner’s own personal “investment” of time, effort, and attention to the second language in the form of an individualized battery of strategies for comprehending and producing the language.\(^1\)

That principle showed mastering foreign language or second language needs a different strategy than comprehending other knowledge; it also needs the personal desire to success it, because language is not only knowledge but also skills such as the way to produce the language including the producing of expressions or sentences based on the culture of that language. Actually the way to teach language material to students have a strategic position to build students moral;\(^2\) thus language teaching absolutely accompanied with the moral within the language which learned, but the teacher also need to consider inserting the morality where the language learned (national morality), so that the students will proud of their own nationality even they be able to master some other language. Moreover, English is western language so the morals within the language were also western moral values; there were difference moralities between Indonesia morality and western morality.\(^3\)

The teacher could be benefitted cultural values as source or approach in teaching learning; as Daoed Joesoef, cited by Slamet Sutrisno (1988) in his book “Pancasila Kebudayaan dan Kebangsaan”, explicitly said that education

(teaching and learning process) was being used for continuing, maintaining, and processing cultural values as well as become the soul of education itself, in other word it was a strategic effort to maintain human culture. Because basically education was fortifying the cultural values, here seems the concrete direct relation between education and culture, so that those two aspects will run perfectly when the teacher can be conducting them in the suitable way in teaching learning process.

Definitely, those explanations showed that national education system handled a prior role to implement the development of national culture. If the system runs well, as result the students will be not only mastering the knowledge learned but also increasing their nationalism sense even though they will live in the heterogeneous and global society. Because the real difference between Indonesian and other nation is that truly Indonesian are people who always apply Pancasila (national) values in daily life. Underlined, nationalism values actually is an abstract learning, sometimes it was not written values but only reputed as good values when someone doing something good based on the society’s customs. Thus, it was actually not really difficult for Indonesian to 5 Ibid., p. 86.

6 Ibid., p. 99.
7 Ibid., p. 92.
apply national values, all Indonesian already have a sense to difference between good thing and bad thing to do, and it is because since in the child age Indonesian already accustomed to difference it from their environment. Sometimes Indonesian were not aware when doing something marked as a good attitude which mentioned in Pancasila values, It just because our Pancasila only said five aspects in general, nevertheless actually values within Pancasila is unlimited,\(^\text{10}\) but it had explained by 45 cells of Pancasila. Indeed, it showed that Pancasila became a life guide for Indonesian in daily life,\(^\text{11}\) it seems like Pancasila already flow in Indonesian blood, and in other word Pancasila called by character of Indonesian cultural values.\(^\text{12}\)

Indonesian cultural values should be appropriate with Pancasila, because Pancasila was being the root of culture,\(^\text{13}\) and also a soul of Indonesian culture development.\(^\text{14}\) Talk about the development of culture, the advancement of technology, art, social relation business design, etc., also kind of culture development. Here Albert Hirschman, cited from Slamet Sutrisno’s (1988) book, explicitly said that culture also becomes a factor which determines aspects of life change.\(^\text{15}\) Indeed, culture handled the all aspects of life.

Appropriate with it, Mr. Anies Baswedan also said, his speech at Indonesia national education day 2016, that one of skills needed Indonesian in 21 century is a character, there are two kinds of character, one of them is morality character, and morality character is Pancasila values.\(^\text{16}\) Besides Ridwan (2007) also argues, as our society claims usually values which hold by group of society was becoming attitude and daily behavior.\(^\text{17}\) Indeed here Pancasila claimed as guideline of daily life,\(^\text{18}\) it used for every aspect of live because it was containing of life, religion, low, and attitude norms.

Besides Slamet Sutrisno (1988) said that Pancasila was becoming a source of values, normative systems that directing human to the right way,\(^\text{19}\) other source from book “Undang-Undang Dasar Pedoman, Penghayatan dan Pengamalan Pancasila, Garis-Garis Besar Haluan Negara” said that life values and morals within culture which showed of how are Indonesian personalities is Pancasila.\(^\text{20}\) Based on explanation above, teacher should be able to teach language while deliver the message of nation character into a complete package in a teaching learning process. Teaching English with benefiting local cultural values will be reliable to strengthen national character.

\(^{17}\) Murni and Wati, Pembelajaran Bahasa Inggris Berbasis Kearifan Lokal, p. 27.

\(^{19}\) Slamet Sutrisno, Pancasila Kebudayaan dan Kebangsaan, p. 87.

Thus, here researcher standardizes the cultural values that used for analyzing data were based on local values within Pancasila and daily life. The values will be mentioned below.

Language learning cannot be separated from teaching accompanied culture. Considering the need to maintain the nation identity, it will much beneficial to integrate the local cultural values and norms in the practice of English teaching.\(^{21}\) Moreover, Slamet Sutrisno also argues that education has become strategic way to maintain the human culture, even though from the other side education is part of that culture itself.\(^{22}\) Those explanation point out that it was really suitable to conduct teaching learning while maintain the culture.

Therefore, integrating cultural values in learning (language) can be a way to strengthen students’ nationalism and cultural identity in this global heterogeneous society.\(^{23}\) Furthermore, they will be a society that really aware of their own identity and have a strong nationalism, because the sense of national cultural awareness is actually one of the character education goals.\(^{24}\)

2. Melting Pot Paradigm

Before explain deeply about melting pot paradigm let’s begin with this example:

Miguel is Latino; he changed his name from Miguel to Mike. He even styled his hair in order to “melt” into the dominant culture. No matter how hard he tried, the society demanding his assimilation did not let him forget that he was still a Latino. When he tried to get a job to feed his children, the only employment he could find was the stereotypical janitor job at a church, even though he was an ordained minister, former pastor and former business owner. Few of his Euroamerican seminary classmates had to mop floors. They, with no experience or training, were able immediately find church positions as ministers.¹⁰⁷

Factually, he is a Latino man named Miguel, not Mike. He learns to deal with it. He is proud of the heritage and accomplishments of his people. He shamed by the atrocities his people have committed. Both the good and bad of his culture make him who he is today. No matter how hard he tries, he will never be Anglo, nor he will be accepting as Anglo, nor should he be. There is much of his culture has to offer others, just as there a much he needs to learn from his Asian, black and Euroamerican friends. Like a salad, they are all distinct.

For the salad is not one element, but many.

Unlike the melting pot paradigm, a truer “American” cultural salad retains the differing flavors of its diverse roots while enriching all other elements. The lettuce cannot say to the tomato, “Why aren’t you lettuce?” Nor can the broccoli tell the pickle, “You must assimilate and become like broccoli.” Each separate element celebrated distinctively, while together becoming something greater than the sum of its parts.\(^{108}\)

What we can conclude from the example above is in the term of culture, melting pot is assimilation between various minority cultures into a dominant culture, it just like there is continue interaction between a culture crossing over into another culture, they join together to create a large heterogeneous mixture.\(^{109}\) Appropriate with Berry J. W. definition (2006,)

[...] A single dominant or mainstream society, on the margins of which are various minority groups. The common assumption is that culturally diverse groups absorb into the mainstream culture in such a way that they essentially disappear.\(^{110}\)

Accordingly, a heterogeneous society become melting pot society in the same way, they just assimilate some minority custom to the mainstream custom. The main principle is one’s own cultural identity is not primary importance, the central principles is establishment of the new world order.\textsuperscript{111} It is strongly different with multicultural, here Berry J. W. define multicultural

In a “multicultural” society “[...] individuals and groups retain their cultural continuity and a sense of their cultural identity and, on that basis, they participate in the social framework of the larger society\textsuperscript{112}

As we know in the example above multicultural is like salad consist of various vegetables and flavors in a plate without demand a tomato taste like a lotus or a broccoli taste as a cucumber, they are together in a plate creating a good collaboration of flavor.

Factually in this globalization era, group of society in a region or area have a global tendency to the dominant custom. Agree with it Rajendra Pradhan (2003) has noted that a global tendency has been for nation states to move towards homogeneity of cultures and the erasure of differences, either by assimilation into the dominant culture (melting pot).\textsuperscript{113} Thus, the difference both melting pot and multiculturalism are (a) melting pot is melting some differences into a custom which more dominant and can be accepting by global people, while (b) multiculturalism is appreciate all custom in a group of society which can sit together without take a problem in that difference.

Some sources also said melting pot is kind of multiculturalism concepts. I Made Sukamerta gives more explanation that, cite from Meriam-Webster, Webster New Collegiate Dictionary (Springfield: G. & C. Merriam Company, 1977, p. 716), melting pot is a multiculturalism concept that has two possibility. They are (a) occurred unification of race and social assimilation than creating harmonic culture; and (b) occurred of cultural assimilation process that has produces reinforcement of old culture or build a new culture, which is different with the past culture.\textsuperscript{114}

In this study, researcher used Melting Pot Paradigm in education term, which is engaging cultural values and material become a component that melt in one pot, it is teaching learning process in the classroom. As Ni Nyoman Padmadewi said in her journal which cited Arend (2003) statement, Melting Pot Paradigm in education term (intended in this study) is integrating local cultural values in the main topic (material) implicitly, so that both of main topic and local cultural values are impartially and accepted together by students in a learning process.\textsuperscript{115}

Actually, melting pot paradigm is cultural term that turned up by Zangwill, but long by long in the development of science and world, that term adapted to the some aspects of life, one of them is adapted to the education term. Ni Nyoman Padmadewi’s from Ganesa Education University, by her study the title is Model Konseptual Pembelajaran Bahasa Inggris Berbasis Budaya Untuk Sekolah Dasar di Bali cites the Arend’s statement that use the melting pot paradigm in education term as an approach to integrate the local cultural values in language teaching learning.

The integration of local cultural values in language learning can be doing in some ways, they are: (a) selecting materials contain of local cultural norms and values, (b) giving additional explanation of some foreign cultural norms found in the process of teaching,¹¹⁶ (c) Exploring and discussing materials in free topics with inserting some cultural values, or (d) giving the lesson suitably with students’ live contexts and the custom that is always or often occur in the students’ environment.¹¹⁷

The integration of local culture in melting pot paradigm will not successfully carried out without supports by all individuals involved in the practice of English language teaching, both the teachers, materials, and the government as well. Because the application of this paradigm actually engaging the human experience and also mature plan from all elements included.

3. Learning Activities

According to Sardiman (2007), learning activity is students’ activities to support learning success.\textsuperscript{118} The successes of learning process not only determined by students’ activity, but also teacher’s ability to conduct the class, because learning activity run successfully measured from individual activity both students and teacher performance.\textsuperscript{119} Activity is an important principle in learning process because learning is doing the norm and morality. Agree with it Sardiman (2003) also said activity is necessary in learning process.\textsuperscript{120}

The presence of activities in learning process is to create active students asking and putting forward the ideas. In composing learning activity teacher should keep attention of some values that should be inserting into learning activities, here Hamalik (2005) explained some values of learning activity:

\begin{itemize}
\item[a.] The students looking for their own experience
\item[b.] Evolving the students personality integrally
\item[c.] Improving harmonious of students cooperation
\item[d.] Doing based on the interest and capability
\item[e.] Increasing students discipline and build a democratic class
\item[f.] Tighten the relation between school and society, and between parents and teachers \end{itemize}

g. Concrete learning to evolving students’ critical thinking
h. Classroom learning become the same as habitual activity in the real life. In line with those values above, the researcher will limit the values of learning activities that applied by teachers in the classroom based on those Hamalik explanations, indeed the learning activities values should be related to local cultural values. Here list kinds of learning activities based on Diedrich explanation at Sardiman’s book (2007):

a. Visual activities, includes keeping attention of pictures, doing experimentation, perceiving friends’ work
b. Oral activities, like: explaining, formulating, asking question, giving suggestion and opinion, interviewing, discussing
c. Listening activities, such as: listening of explanation, conversation, discussion, music, and speech
d. Writing activities, like writing story, opus, report, questionnaire, and copying
e. Drawing activities, such as: picturing, make a map, diagram, graphic
f. Motor activities, includes experimenting, constructing, repairing, playing, gardening, breeding
g. Mental activities, such as: perceiving, remembering, analyzing, making relation, take decision
h. Emotional activities, such as: interesting, boring, happy, enthusiasm, brave, calm, nervous.

Paul B. Diedrich at Sardiman A.M, (2007) also clarify that those learning activity not only physical activities, but also psychological activities. Here researcher made categories of learning activities, they are:

1. Physical activity is activities related to body motion, they are visual activities, oral activities, listening activities, writing activities, drawing activities, and motor activities.

2. Psychological activity is activities that related to thinking and intellectual ability, like understanding and solve the problem, remembering, taking decision, analyzing, cooperating, asking and answering question. It is mental activities.

3. Emotional activity is activities related to emotion, like interesting, boring, happy, spirit, brave, calm, nervous. It is emotional activities.

From those three categories of learning activities, the researcher focused to analyze on those three things Physical activity, Psychological activity, Emotional Activity.
