Key Terms: Semiotic, Advertisement, Fast Food Restaurant

This research discussed Semiotic analysis on fast food restaurant advertisement. The theory that was used in the paper is based on Roland Barthes’ concept. The main concept of Roland Barthes’ theory of Semiotic was denotation, connotation and myth. The general purpose of this paper was to discuss the deep meaning that is created by the creator of the advertisement. The design of the study used descriptive qualitative approach. The researcher uses descriptive qualitative approach to concern the description and interpretation of fast food restaurant advertisement through Semiotic theory. The case of study was based on the analysis of the 20 fast food restaurant advertisements. The researcher chose 5 fast food restaurants. It is caused those fast food restaurant are the most popular in this world and everyone absolutely knows them. They are Kentucky Fried Chicken (KFC), McDonald’s, Pizza Hut, and also Subway. In analyzing the data the researcher searched the data, collected the data, analyzed and classified the data, interpreted it then drew a conclusion. The research finding indicated that each fast food restaurants has verbal and non-verbal sign that consist in the advertisements. There are 48 verbal signs and 47 Non-Verbal sign. The result of this study in the conclusion that most of the restaurants used some sign in the advertisement to attract reader attention, inform the information, persuade the reader to buy the product indirectly and also uses certain color to give psychology effect to the readers. Most restaurants use certain color as the dominant color in their advertisement because the color is an important factor to build their brand popularity. Not only that, the perception of people about fast food restaurant always as consumerism, capitalism and obese behind that the restaurant only want to show that they are only a restaurant that sold many food products.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

1.1 Background of Study

Humans need language in order to understand meanings and signs in communication that are given from other social beings. Moreover, the language is a system arbitrary vocal symbol used for human communication (Wardaugh, 1972:3). Everyone can express their opinion and also their knowledge on through language. Besides that, language makes a better understanding of their environment because they can communicate well. Communication can be divided into two ways. The first way is communication between two people or more without any media or it can be called as direct communication. Such as make conversation with some friends in college or in the cafe. The second way is communication using media to convey the ideas or messages to others or it can be called as indirect communication. It means the main tool indirect communication which is used by the participants is a mass media and this communication does not involve other people directly. Such as internet, magazine, television, radio etc.

Advertising is impersonal, it attracts to board group through mass media (Pasqua, 1990:185). We all know that advertisements are promoted by the media. Moreover, in this globalization, every day we easily find many advertisements in a magazine, newspaper, billboard, buses, internet, and on the radio, flyers, newsletter, or poster. Commonly, the advertisement is made by companies to promote their product. More good and interesting advertisement, it can more persuade consumers. The role of advertising in marketing a product is to build awareness of the existence of the products offered, to persuade customers to buy and use the product, and also to differentiate one company to the other company. Without advertisement, a company can not sell its product, while many consumers will not know the information about the product. In any mass media’s advertisements, there are some advertisements commonly use in the culinary field. Especially in fast food restaurant advertisements.

Fast food restaurant almost always the first choice when traveling with family or friends. As the name implies, fast food restaurants offer fast service than other restaurants because the food is cooked beforehand so when there are customers who buy the food, it is just laid back.

There is a lot of fast food restaurant to be famous in the world. In this research, the researcher uses 4 of the most famous fast food restaurant advertisements. They are KFC (Kentucky Fried Chicken), McDonald’s, Pizza Hut, and also Subway.

Subway is a chain restaurant and international food franchise from the United States of America. Subway is the biggest fast food restaurant company according to the number of outlets spread throughout the world. This company also promotes its products by frequently appearing in Korean dramas. Moreover, nowadays everyone like watches Korean drama. Because of it, there are a lot of people who eat in this fast food restaurant and it makes this company more popular. In America, Subway has had 26,646 outlets and has 42,000 restaurants in 100 countries. The main menu in this restaurant is submarine sandwiches and also a salad.

The advertisement is showed by language, picture, sound, and color. A picture can indicate something. In other words, the pictures are made has its own meaning for the viewer. Advertisement use many signs to attracts the consumers. Not only that, to fulfill the desire of the consumers some of the creators make an interesting and creative advertisements the signs on the advertisements are made interesting and creative as possible to fill the desire of the reader or costumers. A text is can be called as a sign. Between a sign and the meaning of the text is discrete, if the sentence can be understood, it does not mean the meaning of the text can be understood. In other aspects, color plays a role to gives the sign. It can be a tool to influence the consumer to look, attention, read and remember the messages that are informed. In this millennial era, most of the people think that the purpose of an advertisement is only to promote the products, but actually behind advertisements that they make there are a lot of messages that want to be given by the creator of advertisement to the readers. The massage creates with many codes it has a purpose to the audience can understand it well.

Based on Ernst Cassirer, used symbol, a human can express feeling, look for knowledge and have the desire to create something (Wahono, 182: 2004). But in this case, sometimes not all people can understand well or catch the meaning of the advertisements which is made by the creator or it can say they have the difficulties to interpret the messages which are conveyed in the advertisement. It is caused the unclear message which is made by the creator of the advertisements. This study aim is to know about what the meaning of advertisement that was created by the factory to get consumers to understand the brand in a glance by using semiotic approach.

The purpose of codes that consist of the advertising for mass consumer is ordering us to interpret the containing message in sign from advertising. The interpretation of a sign is dependent on the context, its relationship to other signs and its environment, in other words, culture. Signs are important because they have more meaning than the obvious. In this millennial era, some people give a different meaning to the sign in the advertisement. Sometimes, sign does not signify the same thing to everyone, depending on the context, brands need to provide that context if they want to use the signs to create meaning with consumers. In interpreting signs around, it needs knowledge about how the way of sign could be interpreted as well as what is purposed. The way, in linguistics is called semiotics. It is knowledge to study of producing and interpreting data systematically. To analyze the advertisement in the semiotic approach, we can analyze a system of sign that consist of a symbol. The basic symbols of the sign consisting of the verbal and non-verbal symbol. Semiotic is important because it can help us not to take reality for granted as something having a purely objective existence which is independent of human interpretation. Besides that, semiotics can be a method for shaping and analyzing how communication works. As a result, the theory of semiotics is useful as a tool for researching or investigating misconceptions in intercultural communication. Therefore, the writer chooses this topic because semiotics is an interesting topic to be analyzed.

There are some writers who wrote in the same field. Research of sign and meaning in communication has been done by Ali (2017) with the title A Semiotics Study of Verbal Expression Used in Wardah Cosmetics Advertisements. By using semiotic analysis, he tries to find the signifier and also the signified of semiotics in Wardah cosmetics advertisement. He focuses on Wardah Cosmetic lightening Series. The result of his research indicated the signifier or the verbal expression which is said by the woman in the video and also he found the denotative and connotative meaning of semiotic in Wardah cosmetic lightening series that consist of 5 videos. The writer also found 13 sentences contains the denotative and connotative meaning of semiotic. However, previous research in this field has concentrated only in verbal expression. The non-verbal sign was not analyzed in this research. It means he did not analyze the expression of the actor and how the way the scene is taken.

The other study was carried out by Yasin (2011) who analyzed 7 advertisements of education in the campus magazine. Some of the universities that were analyzed by him are Trisakti University, Australia Student, Ukrida, UPH Advance Learning Experience, Canadian Education Fair 2009, PSB Academy and also Mercu Buana University. He used the theory of Charles Pierce. The concept of triadic is the theory that emphasizes the role of the subject in the transformation of language. The result of the study there is national and overseas universities that give advertisement for education in the campus magazine. Every university describes the visions, programs, and faculties that are given at those universities. They claim that their universities are the best, so they purpose to get success in the future.

The other research which are written by Prasetya (2014) that also analyzes the advertisement of junk food. In his research entitled Tindak Tutur Iklan Produk Makanan Cepat Saji di Televisi dan Implikasinya dalam Pembelajaran Bahasa Indonesia di Sekolah Menengah Pertama. In his research, he focused on speech acts of fast food advertising on television and its implementation towards Indonesian language learning in junior high school. Fast food producers used in this research were KFC and McDonald. The results of the research showed that speech acts of fast food advertising on television used direct and indirect literal speech acts which having some communicative functions such as to attract the consumers by giving offerings that involve feeling expression and related information. The results of this research revealed that the implementation of the Indonesia language in junk food advertisements can be used for learning in Junior High School as students learning resources in exposition text. The students are able to use fast food advertising as learning resources because comprehending speech acts in advertising make the students able to find out the main idea and arguments that support the main idea in composing exposition text. However, this research did not analyze the sign of the advertisement, he focused on speech acts that contain in the television advertisement

Based on the previous studies, the researcher found out that among them used semiotic theory only in cosmetic, campus magazine advertisements.
However, previous researches in this field have been limited to data such as in Ali’s research and theory used in it. Because of it, the result of the research is lacking information. In Indonesia, the research about semiotic which is focused on fast food advertisement is conducted rarely. Even though there is research that analyzed about KFC and McDonald advertisements but they focused only on speech acts which were contained in television advertisements.

Therefore, the researcher intends to conduct research used semiotic theory in fast food restaurant advertisements. The present research is conducted to fill the gap of the previous study. The researcher investigates verbal signs and also non-verbal signs that contain in the advertisements by using Roland Barthes theory.

The researcher used the theory of Roland Barthes. It focused on the denotative and connotative meaning of signs that contain in fast food restaurant advertisements. The first way the researcher will identify the symbol of verbal and also non-verbal which consist in the advertisement. After the researcher finds both of them, the second ways to understand the sign is identifying the denotative and connotative meaning. The researcher also analyzes the meaning that motivates the fast food restaurant advertisement.

The researcher took the data from KFC (Kentucky Fried Chicken), McDonald’s, Pizza Hut, and also Subway advertisement. The researcher collected the data from the internet by downloading KFC (Kentucky Fried Chicken), McDonald’s, Pizza Hut, and also Subway advertisements. The researcher took 5 advertisements in each fast food restaurants. The advertisements which are taken must full the criteria. First, both of advertisements have complete aspects to be analyzed. The aspects which have to available in the advertisements are: first, the advertisements must construct the form of the verbal sign (title, subtitle, and text or it can be the slogan of the product). Furthermore, they also constructed the form of Non-verbal (related to the picture and the logo of the brand) sign that can be analyzed. The advertisements must have both two aspects because of the researcher want to analyze both the verbal sign and non-verbal sign in the advertisements. Based on those cases, the researcher sees that signs which are contained in KFC (Kentucky Fried Chicken), McDonald’s, Pizza Hut, and also Subway advertisements have filled up these two aspects. This study deals with the written and visual sign that shows in KFC (Kentucky Fried Chicken), McDonald’s, Pizza Hut, and also Subway advertisements. So to elaborate and answer the statement problem the researcher used Roland Barthes’ theory.

1.1 Problems of the Study

Based on the background of the study explained above, the writer is interested in analyzing the problem, which is formulated as follows:

1.1.1 What are verbal and non-verbal signs in fast food restaurant advertisements?

1.1.2 What is denotative meaning and connotative meaning of the sign in fast food restaurant advertisements?

1.1.3 How is the myth motivating those all fast food restaurants advertisement?
1.2 Objectives of the Study

1.2.1 To find out the form of verbal and non-verbal signs which consist in fast food restaurant advertisements.

1.2.2 To describe the denotative and connotative meaning of the sign in fast food restaurant advertisements.

1.2.3 To describe the myth that motivates those fast food restaurant advertisements.

1.3 Significant of Study

It is hoped that this paper gives theoretical and practical significance. Theoretical significance is contributing additional information to readers, especially the people who are interested in representing an advertisement used semiotic theory. The writer hopes this study can be useful for English Department student as a reference in analyzing advertisements.

This study practically is to enrich the understanding of semiotic on the fast food restaurants advertisements to the reader, especially in Roland Barthes’ theory. Not only that, we also know denotative and connotative meaning on fast food restaurants advertisements. To study semiotic is very important not only to create good advertisements but it also can see that there is something behind text and picture of advertisements.
1.4 Scope and Limitation

Regarding the statement of the research problems, the scope of the study is also the researcher focuses on denotative and connotative meaning in fast food restaurant advertisements. Another scope of the study is the researcher focuses on the myth that motivates all of the fast food restaurants. The limitation in this research is the researcher only chooses in 5 fast food restaurant which is the most popular in the world. And the researcher limits the advertisements around 2016.

1.5 Definition of Key Term

Related to the title of this thesis, the writer will like to give some definitions to avoid misunderstanding of the readers when reading this thesis, thus the readers are expected to have some interpretation and perception in understanding this present study.

1. Semiotic is a study of signs in general. It covers all types of sign - visual, auditory, gestural, olfactory, and so on (Cruise, 2006: 2)

2. An advertisement is a form of marketing communication used to promote or sell something, usually a business’s product or service. Advertisement promote the sale of goods and persuading the people to buy the product (Bierley, 1995: 18)

3. Fast Food is a type of mass-produced food designed for commercial resale and with a strong priority placed on speed service (Jakle, 1999: 23)

4. Myth is an expression of a specific ideological vision of the world (Allen, 2003: 34)
5. Denotative is the meaning of words or pictures which refer to real world (Palmer, 2010: 14)

6. Connotative is the implicit meaning of word or pictures (Barker, 2001: 4)
CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF LITERATURE

2.1 Semiotics

Semiotic or semiology is terminology that refers to the same knowledge. The term of semiology is more widely used in Europe whereas the term of semiotic often used by an American scientist. The term which is from Greece word semeion which means ‘sign’ is a knowledge that learns about sign system such as language, code, signal etc (Cobley, 1999: 4)

Simply, semiotic is knowledge about signs. Semiotic learn about the system, rules, conventions that allows these signs to have a meaning. In the same understanding, it is mentioned that semiotic is knowledge about how the interpretation of sign. Or it can to say, scientific study of the meaning formation. In conclude, semiotic is a study which concerns with a symbolic world. The reason for it is all of the content of mass media is language basically, meanwhile language is a symbolic word.

Based on Ferdinand Saussure, he mentioned the definition of semiotic in his book Course de Linguistique Generale as “knowledge that studied about the sign” as part of social life. Whereas, according to Roland Barthes, semiotic is knowledge about form. This study assessed the signification that is separate from the content. Semiotic is not only analyze about signifier and signified, but also the relationship which binds both of them.
Modern semiotic has 2 fundamental founders, the first one is Charles Sanders Pierce (1857-1914) and the other one is Ferdinand De Saussure (1857-1913). Both of the figures developed semiotics separately and both of them did not know each other. Saussure developed semiotics in Europe, whereas Charles in the United States. According to Zoest, the fact that they did not know each other, it caused there are important differences especially in the application of the concepts (Zoest, 1996: 1). Those differences are due to Pierce is an expert of philosophy and logic, while Saussure is a scientist about general linguistics.

The main duty of semiotics researcher is analyzing the surrounding phenomenon through any kind of “sign” which has seen. The representation of sign from the phenomenon which has a number of criteria such as role, function, goals, and also desires. The signs are in human life. Therefore, signs are really familiar and even attached to human life which abounded with meaning (meaningful action) such as actualized in language, religious, and history of arts (Budianto, 2001: 16).

Signs are everywhere. Words are signs, as well as gestures, traffic light, flag, etc. The structure of literature, structure of film, building and also the song of birds can be considered as a sign. (Faruk, 1999: 17). Based on Saussure, the meaning of the sign is influenced by another sign. Semiotics tries to uncover the essence of the sign system that goes beyond the rules and grammar and also organizes the meaning of complex texts, hidden, and depend on the culture. This point creates attention to additional meaning (connotation) and the meaning of appointment (denotative) and the impression that is caused and disclosed through the uses and combination of the sign. The implementation of it is done by acknowledging the existence of myths, which has been there that originates from the culture and delivered through communication.

Various social discourses create language as the model. According to semiotics view, if all of the social practice can be assumed as a language phenomenon, then all also can be seen as signs. Perhaps this case was caused by the extent of the meaning of the sign itself. One of Saussure’s follower, Roland Barthes, makes a systematic model in analyzing the meaning of signs. The focus of his semiotics is more focused on the ideas about two orders of significations.

2.2 Semiotic Concept of Roland Barthes.

Differentiate denotative with connotative meaning is one of way was used by the experts to discuss the larger scope of meaning. Roland Barthes was born in 1915 in Cherbourg, a small city near Atlantic in the southwest of France. He was known as the structural thinker who diligently practiced the linguistics models and semiology of Saussure (Sobur, 63). Saussure interests in the complex way of sentence formation and how sentence forms determine a meaning. But he does not interest on the fact that the same sentence can deliver the different meaning on people that had a different situation. Roland Barthes continued that thought which was known as the term “order of signification” (Christony, 2004: 94)

Two orders of signification consist of first-order signification which it is denotation, and the second orders of signification which it is called connotation. The first order includes signifier and signified which in form of sign. This sign is called denotation meaning. Denotation is signification which explained the relation between sign and reference to the reality that produced explicit meaning, directly, and certainly. Whereas, the connotation is signification which explained the relation between signifier and signified that in it operated implicit and hidden meaning.

Table 2.1 Sign Map of Roland Barthes

From the table of Barthes above seen that denotative sign (3) consists of the signifier (1) and signified (2). But, at the same time, the denotative sign is also connotative signifier (4). In other words, that point is a material element: if only you know sign “lion”, connotation from that sign can be pride, ferocity, and brave. (Sobur, 69).

So, in the concept of Barthes, the connotative sign does not only have additional meaning but also contains two parts of denotative sign that underlies its existence. Actually, this is Barthes’ contribution which means complete of Saussure semiology, which stops in signified and denotative order. Connotation and denotation are often explained in terms of representation level. Briefly, denotation and connotation can be explained as follows:

a. Denotation is the interaction between signifier and signified in the sign, and between sign and referent (object) in external reality.

b. The Connotation is interaction which appears when sign converges with feeling or emotion of the reader and their cultural value. The meaning is subjective or intersubjective. A sign is more open in its interpretation of connotation than denotation.

2.2.1 Denotation, Connotation and Myth

For Barthes, denotation is explained as a word that has no meaning or additional feeling. Therefore it calls denotative meaning. The denotative meaning has some other term such as denotational meaning, conceptual meaning, or ideational meaning. Denotative meaning is the objective relationship between a word and the reality to which it refers.

In addition, according to Pateda (2001: 98), denotation means the meaning of word or group of words which depend on the word itself or depend on the certain convention. For example, most of people in the world agree that the things which accepted to sit down are called by chair. So, chair has only meaning as something which is used by people to sit down. From those explanations denotation can definite as the meaning of word which comes from the word itself.
The researcher concludes that the denotative meaning of a word is its literal meaning. In the simple way, a denotative meaning is the real meaning of a word. The denotative meaning can be found in the dictionary.

Whereas, the connotation is a word that contains additional meaning, a certain feeling, or certain value alongside the general basic meaning. Connotation or connotative meaning is also called connotational, emotive meaning, or evaluative meaning. Connotative meaning uses words to add further complications to any theorizing about meaning, particularly their uses in metaphor.

According to Barker, connotative meaning is the communicative value an expression has by virtue of what it refers to over and above its purely conceptual content (2001:4). On the other hand, connotative is the implicit meaning of a word. Connotation is more complicated than denotation. It is caused besides the denotative meaning, a word sometimes has the emotional overtones or we call ‘connotative’ meaning.

Denotation and connotation cannot be seen separately or independently. A sign that we see definitely it is a denotation. Denotation meaning is what appears in the picture, in the other word, picture brings up denotation itself. Denotation itself will be connotation and for further connotation precisely be denotation when the connotation has been used generally and understand simultaneously as a rigid meaning.
From the figure 2.1 above, according to Fiske explains: the a relation between signifier and signified in a sign of external reality is called first order signification. Barthes stated a real meaning of a sign is mentioned as denotation. The Connotation is a term which is used for indicating second order signification. This point showed the interaction that occurred when a sign converged with emotion or feeling from the readers and also cultural value. Connotation had the meaning which subjective or at least intersubjective. In other words, denotation is what was conceived of a sign against an object. (Fiske, 1990: 88)

In second-order signification that relates to contents, a sign works through myth. The myth is how culture explains or understands some aspect of reality or natural phenomena. Myths is a social product that has domination. In that figure, the arrow from signified is pointing to myth. Myth can be said as domination ideology a certain time. Denotation and connotation have a potency to be an ideology that can be categorized as third order signification (this term is not from Barthes), but Barthes said this concept as myth (Birowo, 2004: 58).
According to Barthes, myth is not merely an object, concept or idea, but a way of meaning and message, a form. Everything can be myth when delivered through discourse (Barthes, 1964: 103). Myth a discourse is the principle of signification, a form, a communication system in the form of messages. Thus the myth is not possible in the form of a concrete object or concept or idea, on the contrary, the myth is signification that is a form. Considers that the myth is a kind of speech then everything can be a myth as long as conveyed through forms of discourse. Myth decrypted message is not limited by the goal but the way this message said.

Barthes further explains that everything in the world could be a myth. Everything in this world can be changed from a closed from in the silence switch an oral condition that is open to use by the public, either because there is no natural law that prohibits or does not talk about such things.

Myth incomprehension of Barthes is a meaning coding and social value as something that is considered scientific. According to Urban, myth is a unique main way to understands reality. (Sobur, 222). Such myth is specific certain cultures, and they are arguable, ‘countryside’ may connote something quite different to a confirmed citizen of a city. While the process of signification is universal, the meaning that is generated in the process will be culturally specific (Hartley, 2002: 14). Therefore, one of the goal semiotic analyzes is to provide analyzes method in order to handle of misreading in the sign which contain in the advertisements.
2.2.2 Barthes’ Reading Photography

In handling the misreading of the photograph advertisements, Barthes differenced the signs into two categories. They are verbal parts and non-verbal signs (Cobley, 1999: 51). The verbal parts of course, the text of the advertisement. It can be the name or the slogan of the product or people, information about something, persuasion sentences, or anything else which occurs in the text. Non-verbal signs are the sign that appearances are aimed to support the verbal part in order to be an interesting package of advertisement. It can be pictures, colors, animation etc. They are not only as a compliment but also they have deep meaning that can produce a message to the reader. According to Luzar, color gives the spontaneous effect to psychological of people who see the color. Color could become one of the main tools for communicating the message. 2.3 Definition of Advertisement

According to Cook, he defined very generally about advertisement. He stated that advertisement is the promotion of goods or services for sale through impersonal media (2001:9). In other words, the advertisement can be meant as forms of activity in communication, attract attention and persuade partial or all society to take action and respond the idea, item, or service that is presented. We can find advertisements in a magazine, newspaper, billboard, buses, internet, on the radio and also newsletter of the poster.
Based on Arens in Junaedi, he states that advertisements as structure and composition of communication that is non-personal, generally it is paid form which is characterized by persuasiveness, contains about product (it can be goods, service or idea) by an identified sponsor through any kind of media (Junaedi, 2013: 109). Clearly, advertisements are persuasive messages for marketing communication or public communication about a product (goods, service or idea) which is delivered through media, and it is paid by the initiator and also it is intended to part or all society. Advertisements are also mass communication form, where the process occurs not through face to face as interpersonal communication.

From some definition about advertisement above, basically, advertisements are a tool of communication that is used by the communicator. In this point, the company or producer uses advertisement to convey the information about their goods or service to the public, especially to their customer through mass media. Other than that, all of the advertisements are made with the same purpose that is to give information and persuade the consumer to try or follow what is there in the advertisement, it can be in the form of activity of consuming the product or service which has been offered.

2.4 The Function of Advertising

Based on Rot Zoill through Rendra Widyatama, he states that the function of advertising divided into four functions (Widyatama, 2007: 147). Four functions will be described as follows:
a. Advertisement functions to advances change a condition from a situation that previously could not make a decision could be made a decision. As the example is increasing demand, creating awareness and knowing about a product.

b. Advertisement functions to raise audiences according to the message advertised. This point includes attraction of emotion, convey information about the character of the product, and also persuade the consumer to buy the product.

c. Advertisement can strengthen a decision that has been made by the consumer.

d. Advertisement can increase and strengthen to a product that has been advertised.

2.5 Advertising Effects

According to Widyatama, there are a lot of advertisements that present in our daily lives. So, it is not impossible that advertisements a little more will give effect to the public. Many kinds of advertising effect that is gotten by the public. It is starting from the individual level, family till society. Some of these influences include:

a. Economic Effect

One of the real effects of advertisements is seen in the economic sector. In this aspect, the advertisement must be seen as an economic activity. In other words, when a company does advertising, it occurs a business transaction between sponsors and advertising media that advertisement will be shown or displayed.
b. Psychological Effect

Psychological effect that is arisen by advertisement is really different, it can be from cognitive and affective, both individually and mass. The psychological effect which occurs in the cognitive area had time to grow the attention of the public to something that is higher than a product that is not doing advertising. That phenomenon shows that attention and perception of the consumer more or less are influenced by advertisements.

c. Social Culture Effect

Psychological effect that is produced by advertisements gradually will crystalize and collectively will be generally public behavior. Public behavior that more general will establish the value system, lifestyle, and certain standard culture (it includes influence the moral standard, ethics, and aesthetic).
CHAPTER III
RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

3.1 Research Design

In this research, the researcher uses a descriptive-qualitative method. This research had a purpose to give an explanation that there was sign consist of a verbal and non-verbal sign, denotation and connotation in KFC (Kentucky Fried Chicken), McDonald’s, Pizza Hut, and also Subway advertisements. Descriptive method is the method which is used to find the elements, criterions, and the characteristics of the phenomenon (Suryana, 2010:16). This method was started with collecting, analyzing, and interpreting the data. A qualitative method was chosen because the researcher did an in-depth interpretation of the sign in fast food restaurant advertisements. Furthermore, the researcher wanted to give some critical analysis of fast food restaurant advertisements.

Research approach of this research is qualitative research. Bogdan and Taylor (in Moleong, 2007: 4) define that qualitative method as the procedure of the research which procedures descriptive data in the form of written texts or people spoken and the behavior which can be analyzed for. Arikunto (1998: 193) states that this qualitative research tries to explain the data using words or sentence which is separated into some categories to get a conclusion.
3.2 Instruments

The instrument of this research is human instruments Mukhtar (109: 2013) states that ourself is an instrument or tool of direct observation because all sense of researcher is essentially a tool of observation. It means the researcher is an instrument in this research. The writer involves collecting, describing, analyzing data and making the finding.

3.3 Data and Data Source

According to Mukhtar (99: 2013), data is the all of empirical information and documentative that obtained in the field as a construction science in scientifically and academically. Data is something related to what the researcher wants to find. It means the number of advertisements examined by researcher amount to 20 advertisements. The qualification of advertisements are the data should have a slogan, interesting, and has signs in every part. The data should have a slogan, text, phrase, and clause to be verbal data and has the picture, color, or animation to be non-verbal data. The data which has qualified.

3.4 Data Collection

The writer took KFC (Kentucky Fried Chicken), McDonald’s, Pizza Hut and Subway advertisements from the official website of each restaurant because this advertisement considered many interesting parts to be analyzed.

Some steps to collect the data in this research can be seen below:

This study would focus on the aspect of a semiotic analysis by Roland Barthes. Here the method of analyzing data which was used by the researcher. To analyze the data, the researcher analyzed the pictorial aspect and the linguistic aspect of fast food restaurant advertisements.

1. The researcher identified the data into two types. First is verbal and second is non-verbal data. The researcher classifies the data which are underlined words, phrase or sentence, the slogan as the verbal sign. Whereas the picture of the color of the advertisement as the non-verbal sign. Besides that the researcher also provides the initial of the sign: for Verbal sign (V), and Non-verbal sign (NV).
2. After the researcher identified the sign, the researcher classified the sign into their categories. The researcher made a table to show the classified sign to make the reader understand easily. The table was shown below:

3. After the researcher found those signs, the second ways to understand deeply the sign is identifying the denotative and connotative meaning using Roland Barthes theory.

Denotative analysis was gotten from the picture or the text itself. The researcher gave the categories of the sign and described it. It was caused the denotative meaning came from the sign.
Example:

- Denotative analysis: The KFC logo is symbolized by a grandpa who wears the bow tie, apron, glasses, and white beard and with a happy smiling face. The background of the logo is using red color.

After the researcher described or analyzed the denotative of the sign then the researcher interpreted the meaning of each component in the advertisement. such as the meaning of red color, glasses, apron grandpa etc. The example can be seen bellow:

- Connotative analysis: The grand himself represent the founder of KFC-Colonel Saunders. Everything that he uses has a meaning itself. The meaning of his bow tie is representing professionalism. A human who has extensive knowledge always uses glasses. His happy smile face is representing their customer service that their service in KFC always satisfying the consumers. The using of red color to increasing the appetite of the reader.
4. After finding the denotation and connotation meaning of each advertisement, the researcher analyzed the myth that motivated all of the fast food restaurants made some advertisement. The myth of the advertisement can be seen from the connotative analysis of the sign.

5. The last step was drawing the conclusion based on the result of the analysis.

They are the verbal and non-verbal sign. The verbal sign which can be analyzed in the advertisement is the text, phrase, slogan, or the sentence. The presence of verbal and non-verbal is to reinforce the advertisements’ message. There are 48 verbal signs and 47 Non-verbal sign in the advertisement.

The second question is about the denotation and connotation meaning in the advertisement. These signs have their connotation and denotation meaning. The denotation meaning comes from the signifier and signified of the message and the connotation meaning comes from denotation as the signifier and the signified. From the connotative analysis the researcher concludes that all of those fast food restaurants use their own slogan, color and also their unique advertisements to attract the attention of the reader, persuade the reader to buy their product indirectly, consist of the information of the product and also give some psychology effect that is symbolized their company to the readers.
