with adult or the honorable people, we can used the polite words, such as Mr. President, Lady, etc. Whereas if we are talking in non formal event, we can used informal too such as when we are talking with our friends, etc. Therefore, deixis is one of the important things that we have known about that, because it really makes us easy to communicate with other people if we known the context.

From this research, the researcher hopes that it can give inspiration for next research that interested in this theory. And for the next research it will better for you to search other kinds of literary works. You can also limit your discussions such you can only focus on one of the types of deixis like Person deixis, or if it possible, you can combine with another theory. Next, the researcher also hopes that this research can give some knowledge and understanding about deixis and reference. Because we have known about that to avoid a misinterpretation when we are doing communication and it also can make us easy to understand what other people said.
CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

This chapter presents the conclusion of the research based on the analysis and discussion explained in the previous chapter. This included the five types of deixis in the interview between Barrack Obama and Chuck Todd in “Meet the Press”, and also the types of reference and the reference meaning of those deixis. The conclusion formulated below:

5.1 Conclusion

Derived from the result that has been obtained and analyzed, it can be drawn that there were 5 types of deixis according to Levinson’s theory that were employed by Barack Obama and Chuck Todd in “Meet the Press” interview. In this interview there were 84 conversations that contained 5 types of deixis, those are 237 (64%) in person deixis, it can be classified into 108 for first person, 55 for second person, and 74 for third person. The mostly types of person deixis that used by Barack Obama are first person deixis We (28) and I (27), while for Chuck Todd, he used second person deixis You (23) and I (15). Then, 87 (23.5%) in discourse deixis, 26 (7%) in temporal deixis, 18 (15%) in spatial deixis, and the last 2 (0.5%) in social deixis. The total of the use of deixis in this interview is 370 words.
Then, the types of reference that mostly applied in this interview is Anaphora reference which the reference are mention before. In this case, the mostly types of deixis that obtained in this interview are the use of word I and We derived from Barack Obama. The word I in this interview refers to President Obama himself, while the pronoun We are refers to President Obama and his Government. Whereas, For Chuck Todd as a Host in this speech events, the mostly types of deixis that he used the second pronoun You which refers to President Obama as the addressee in this speech events, the second person deixis is the first Pronoun I which refers to himself (Chuck Todd).
